ARIZONA RULES AT A GLANCE

Passing distance

Arizona law requires at least three feet when passing a bicycle traveling in the same direction, until safely past.

Rider rights

On a roadway or adjoining shoulder, bicyclists have the applicable rights and duties of vehicle drivers. Ride with traffic and obey signs and signals. Arizona's keep-right rule has exceptions, including passing, left turns, hazards, and lanes too narrow to share safely.

At night

At night: a white front lamp visible from 500 feet and an approved red rear reflector are required. A red rear lamp may be added; it does not replace the reflector.

WEATHER + ROUTE

HEAT

Check the forecast and heat alerts. Carry water, plan shade and breaks, and choose a cooler time when possible. Stop in a safe place if you feel unwell. Confusion or collapse in the heat can be an emergency: call 911 and begin cooling.

STORMS, DUST + FLOODING

Check alerts before leaving. Stop safely off the road if conditions turn unsafe. For thunder, shelter inside a sturdy building or hard-topped vehicle. Never enter flooded water; seek higher ground if flooding threatens.

ROUTE

Check for road work, closures, and changing conditions before you leave. Choose a route that fits your experience and the conditions.

VISIBILITY

Use a front white light and rear reflector at night as Arizona law requires. Add a working red rear light. Check mounts, aim, and charge; avoid glare.

You matter.

Care comes first.

01 Get out of traffic and check for injuries.

Call 911 for serious injury, danger, or possible head, neck, or spine injury. Avoid unnecessary movement; follow dispatcher instructions.

02 Call police and make a report.

For an emergency, call 911. For other crashes, contact local law enforcement and follow Arizona and local reporting requirements.

03 Photograph the scene and exchange information.

If it is safe, photograph the location, bicycle, vehicle, visible damage, and road conditions. Exchange names and contact, driver, and insurance details; note witness contacts.

04 Seek medical care.

Get medical attention for injuries promptly; do not delay care for reports or photos. Follow a clinician's advice.

05 Protect your records and your rights.

Save the report number, photos, medical and repair records, and related messages. Consider speaking with your insurer or a qualified attorney about your options.
